Federation University, Lateral Plains Award

This Award is presented to a student in Science, Engineering and Information Technology to encourage and promote both academic excellence as well as human, outcome orientated thinking and understanding in relation to the application and interaction of systems and technology. The purpose of the award is to encourage creative and different ways of thinking aimed at client/stakeholder focused outcomes. George Fong has been associated with Federation University since 1987, as a lecturer in Law in the School of Business. He soon became involved in Internet systems and their applications to teaching and learning.

Sparx Systems Award

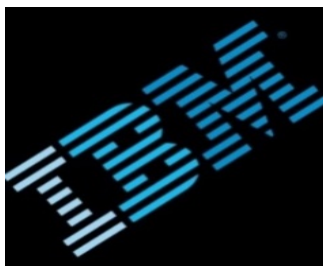

This award was established for a student that displays academic excellence in their degree. As a local software company, Sparx Systems likes to encourage Federation University students to achieve world class results. Sparx Systems has a strong association with Federation University with many staff having worked and studied at Federation University.
